ABELIA FLORIBUNDA

"Red Abelia"

REVIEWED

★ JAN 22 1935 ★

U. S. Department of Agriculture

. . . The best Broad Leaved Evergreen novelty in years! . . .

Wherever climate permits the growth of other Abelias, this new one will rapidly acquire the greatest popularity as it "has everything"!

Habit spreading with erect shoots; maximum height unknown as yet but probably not over 4 feet; leaves evergreen, small and handsome; flowers enormous compared with other Abelias, trumpet-shaped and from 1½ to 2 inches long (illustration is slightly under natural size); color bright rose red.

The main crop of flowers is in spring when the entire plant is loaded with an unbelievable profusion of showy blossoms proving the appropriateness of the name "floribunda". This continues for some time; note the cluster of half developed buds at right of cut. It blooms moderately through summer with another good crop of flowers in autumn.
